

Just for tonight

After all these years,
You steal yourself into my dreams.
No I don't wanna think about,
What this means.

I don't wanna dream,
I wanna live in reality.
Tonight might be real,
But it will fade like a dream.

So just for tonight, you take my hand.
And dance with me around the room.
You look into my eyes and we both know we'll be alright,
But this you and me is just for tonight.

And after early morning hours we step back into our lives,
Our all day routines, our sensible minds.
That's the only right way that we can go for
Yes we both move on, but we won't dance anymore.

We've tried it so often
And failed even more
Had so many chances,
We didn't go for.

So then we just gave up,
Without saying Goodbye
Tonight when I see you,
I just can't remember why.

So just for tonight, you take my hand.
And dance with me around the room.
You look into my eyes and we both know we'll be alright,
But this you and me is just for tonight.

And after early morning hours we step back into our lives,
Our all day routines, our sensible minds.
That's the only right way that we can go for
Yes we both move on, but we won't dance anymore.

So just for that night, you took my hand.
And danced with me around the room.

You looked into my eyes and we both knew we'll be alright,
But this you and me was just for that night.

And after early morning hours we stepped back into our lives,
Our all day routines, our sensible minds.
That's the only right way, that we could go for
Yes we both moved on,
And after early morning hours we stepped back into our lives,
Our all day routines, our sensible minds.
That's the only right way, that we could go for
Yes we both moved on

But we don't dance anymore.
